Hist/Bio Note: William Dunn Sturrock was a Scottish immigrant who was the first superintendent of the Vizcaya estate. He was also one of the first landscape architects to work on the gardens. Sturrock worked at Vizcaya from 1914 to 1917. He was the first to live in the Superintendent's House in Vizcaya Village and was very involved in the design and building process of that structure; he was also responsible for much of the work in planning the gardens, paths, and farm buildings on the estate.

David Sturrock was William's brother, who also worked at Vizcaya and went on to become a noted horticulturalist. A copy of his memoir, The Opus, is in Vizcaya's archives.

Scope: The William Dunn Sturrock Photograph Collection includes some of the earliest images of Vizcaya as it was being constructed and after James Deering moved into the estate. It also includes images of Vizcaya staff at leisure, with each other or with their families, and so gives us one of our clearest looks into the daily life of early Miami.

Notes: Works made by William Dunn Sturrock entered the public domain in 2001. Works by Mattie Edwards Hewitt will enter the public domain in 2026. Works by Richard B. Hoit will enter the public domain in 2043. The copyright status of the Mooney print and David Sturrock's manuscript remain unclear as of April 2020.
